There are many indications that an attempt is about to be made to capture the trade of South America. "The stales on the Pacific Coast have chiefly benefited by the logrence of trade with South America. The new steamships trading between Pacific ports of South America and Pacific ports of the United States, due perhaps to the new interests acquired in the Pacific Ocean, greatly facilitate the trade between the several countries. The development of railways in Vaccuela, Colombia and Argentina, effect with American cupital, and felt almost entains, often with American capital, as also greatly aided the expansion. In it probability this increase will continue specially if the plans of certain Ameriespecially if the plans of certain American investors are carried out. The whole of South America only takes about 3 per cent of the total exports of the United States, but they are increasing. The increase in trade with Chile is considered particularly gratifying as it was unexpected. Chile is recognized as one of the most proposerous and most progressive countries in South America, and it is expected to have a great future. The desire to increase trade with South America is very keen, and there is probably no part of the world where greater efforts are being made to obtain a supremacy.
